Abstract

Over the past several years the State of Alaska developed a network of regional community diagnostic teams focused on the assessment of Fetal Alcohol Syndrome (FAS) and the Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorders (FASD). The model chosen as the standard of practice for the evaluation of FAS/FASD was the University of Washington's multi-disciplinary 4-Digit Diagnostic Code. This presentation will provide a brief overview of the 4-digit diagnostic code and the domains assessed. The benefits and importance of a multi-disciplinary evaluation will be discussed.
